

Petersburg Series

A compilation of photography and illustrations from a two month period spent in Saint Petersburg, Russia.

While not the sole purpose of the trip, the endless winter and slumbering architectural giants provided new life to a creative practice, one tentatively emerging from academic pursuits.

Serving as an alternative to a travelogue or personal diary, the work is motivated by a desire to capture the solitude of walking the cities of Saint Petersburg and Moscow in winter.

Photographs and sketches produced during a sojourn in Moscow have also been included and are labelled accordingly.
